Starfleet Communications is the official newsletter of Starfleet Command, a non-profit Star Trek fan club. Starfleet Command recognizes CBS and Paramount as the sole owners of Star Trek and all Star Trek related intellectual properties. No profit will be made by or as a result of this organization.

Greetings,

First, I would like to congratulate this year's Starfleet Command award winners. From the impressive list we had to vote from, winning any award was a great accomplishment.

My only regret is that we could not give out more awards for all the great work ships and individuals have done in the name of Starfleet Command.

Second, I would like to give an end-of-the-year wrap up. It has been an eventful year and, by my opinion, a very successful year for Starfleet Command. We have lots of new ships and new members. We made numerous changes to the AFEDS including enlisted ranks and Marine leadership roles. Our membership spoke and we listened.

We are setting new goals and reaching those goals. This third newsletter for 2011 is an example of reaching the goal of three newsletters per year. We have a new physical address, a new web address and a new online store, in addition to our existing store for SFC merchandise.

We are thriving and growing in a time of financial uncertainty and rising unemployment. I feel this is due to the enthusiasm, energy, dedication, and ingenuity of our members and our Admiralty Board.

In addition, we reached out to other Star Trek fan clubs, like Starfleet International. The response has been extremely positive and I see great things in our future through joint ventures with other clubs.

Finally, I would like to say what an honor and privilege it is to serve as your Fleet Commander. With all we have accomplished in this first year, I cannot imagine where we will be at the end of my term in 2014.

Yours in Fleet,
FADM Roy Jackson

Greetings,

It is hard to believe that it has been almost a year since I moved from the position of CIT to Deputy Fleet Commander. While the new position has offered new challenges, none of these have been overwhelming and, in fact, I have found them to be a great learning experience. My position as DFC provides me the opportunity to meet more members of this great organization than I would have ever had the chance to otherwise. I feel humbled when a member approaches me for advice, or seeks a solution to a problem in regards to matters of Starfleet Command. I appreciate their trust in me.

I would be negligent if I did not also acknowledge the contributions made by our Starbase Commanders, whose contributions have allowed me the freedom to meet the other challenges of my positions. I posed a challenge to all our Starbase Commanders at the beginning of the year and the commanders accepted my challenge to the degree that even I was astonished.

Regrettably, there can only be one first place winner for Starbase of the Year and this year it goes to Starbase 03, FCAPT James Olson, CO. James also nailed Senior Officer of the Year. Even more amazing is that he has only held the position of Starbase Commander since early February.

FCAPT Olson has shown what we all can accomplish when we strive to become better, more active, members.

ADM Mark Williams, DFC, Acting CIT

The Life and Times of FADM Donald H. Dailey

26 March 1949 – 22 May 2007

By Janet Dailey

I met Don on 7 Dec 1973, in-processing at the Defense Language Institute, Monterey, CA. I was scheduled to study Russian and then later German. I had just finished basic training the week before. Russian Class wasn't going to start until January, so I headed home to Illinois for the Christmas Break. Don was running a shuttle service to the airport for $5. A cab would have cost $30. I had sent Don a Christmas card thanking him for taking me to the airport. I drove back in my 1969 Mustang on 30 Dec 1973. I was unpacking when I heard a knock on the window of my room in the barracks. It was Don, asking for my roommate Karen. Karen wasn't there. I found out later that she had just gotten engaged that day to another guy named Don. Anyway, Don asked me out New Year's Eve; proposed on Valentine's Day in the Denny's parking lot in Seaside, CA. We were married at my home in Rockford, IL Memorial Day weekend 1974.

Don was born in Somerville, MA (near Boston). His mother, Shirley Clarke, was from Laconia, NH and was a member of the local motorcycle club. She was a good artist and a VERY FREE SPIRIT. I had met her as we drove cross country in December 1976. Don had 3 sisters; Donna, Shirley and Judi. His Mom was married at least 3 times. She loved all things Indian, lived in Montana, Oklahoma, California, Oregon and most of the Western States. She passed away in Redding, CA a few years before Don passed away. I did find a new brother-in-law, Dave Hamlen, who lives in Maine. Judi and I visited him in October of 2009 (the directions to his house on Moosehead Lake included the phrase, "when you leave the paved road. . ." we took the 4x4 even though it didn't get great mileage).

Don and I both enjoyed reading and watching Science Fiction. We attended the weekly meeting of the Terran League at the Recreation Center on base. The Recreation Director was a wonderful person, Doris Quinn. She was a published cartoonist and artist. She introduced us to SF cons. First one was Westercon 1974 in Santa Barbara, CA. We took along another budding SF fan (18 year old just graduated young lady whose name escapes me right now). Don had to explain the joke about a mountain getting its rocks off. We drove down Highway 101, had a flat tire. I was able to get the spare out and jack out, but loosening the lug nuts was beyond me. Don had not been feeling well, but he dragged himself out of his nest in the back seat and put his weight into loosening them without a problem. He said that broke his fever and he felt much better after that. Doc Savage was the latest SF movie and Don got a certificate of Savagery. It was there we found out about BJ Trimble and her husband John and Equicon. That was our second SF con, Equicon 1975. It was held in LA and we flew Don's sister Judy there from Arkansas. Got to see Lenard Nimoy and William Shatner (first and only time we saw them at the same time). It was a surprise appearance, not on the agenda. Don bought his Spock mask and blue Original Series Science Officer Shirt. I bought Don a poster of Grace Lee Whitney (Don was somewhere else, listening to programming or watching a movie). The thing one does for one's spouse. . .

We decided to attend our first Worldcon, Kansas City 1976. This was Robert Heinlein, {at that time) my favorite author. Got his autograph on my copy of A Moon is a Harsh Mistress. He won't autograph Don's role playing game, Starship Troopers. Seems they were able to get it produced WITHOUT paying Heinlein any royalties. This happened around the time when Destination Moon, Heinlein fiasco with Hollywood. Met Joe Haldeman in the pre-registration line (he won the Hugo for his novel Forever War). Met and made friend with Morris Scott Dollens, an Artist of many SF pulp covers. I have 4 originals. I helped him out running his table to allow him to attend some programming. He had major financial problems but paid me with slides of his paintings, which Don turned into a staple of his slideshow.

We were stationed in Germany from January 1977 – December 1979. We had attended Seacon, Brighton, England, Worldcon 1979. Then we took a hop from Frankfurt to Mildenhall AFB. Took the train to London where we took in all the sights (the Queen was out of town) for 4 days. Then we took the train with L. Sprague DeKamp and his wonderful wife Katherine. The 007 movie Moonraker was the hit then, along with a Gay Convention going on in Brighton. Superman won the Hugo for the SF movie and Christopher George accepted the Hugo. He was sitting within reach, in the row just in front of us. Also saw Issac Asimov and Arther C. Clark too. ☺)))

We moved to Fort Harrison, IN over the Christmas Holiday 1979. Don was able to pick up our car in NJ that week between Christmas and New Years. We found the Circle of Janus and attended our first meeting in February 1981. I decided to leave the active military; we bought a house, and start our family. Cathy was born March 1981 on my birthday! It wasn't until 4 PM that day that I realized that she had been born on my birthday. We attended the first InConJunction science fiction and fantasy convention that July. Cathy helped me with security on the huckster room.

I think she's made everyone since. I've missed a few along the years. Don's made them all up to 2006.

We have gone to SF cons all over the Midwest like the North Deep Southcon in Louisville in 1985 and several in St Louis (we've been regulars at ARCON), Cincinnati (with Christy Johnson and her crew), Cleveland, and Columbus. We had made several Rivercon and have been to most of the Conglomerations (missed last year because the hotel closed). Don was a big supporter of Starbase Indy. He always was in the play. I helped with registration one year and ran the consuite a couple of years. It was lots of work, but worth it.

Don was also a very active member of First Fandom. I think Morris Scott Dollens introduced him to that organization. When we got to Indy, several C of J (Circle of Janus) members qualified. Don also became a qualified MUFON investigator and completed several investigations in the local area (debunked them all). Don also had an interest in Sherlock Holmes, Celtic History, Ancient Religions, Egypt, Military History, Lord of the Rings, and the Titanic.

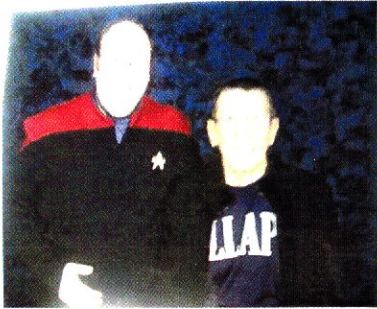

And then there was Star Fleet Command. He was a founding member back in 1973. He and John Wetch wrote letters and often had long distance phone conversations and ran his own ship, the Excalibur. I think we were up to 700 members at the end. Then Wetch disappeared and Don took over in 1988. He became Mr. Mom for Amanda and Cathy. I had completed my BS in 1984 at IUPUI and MA in 1980. Don has just retired and worked almost full-time for SFC; redid the rosters, made the AFED a real document, strengthened the Starbases, and went to meetings of every ship in the area. He wrote hundreds of letters and made thousands of friends. Don never met a stranger.

I donated boxes of books to many of Don's organizations when he passed away. 186 boxes of Military books went to the Indiana Military Library being built in Vincennes, IN.

Amanda married Richard Weaver last October. Richie's mom, Lizette Weaver was a long-time SF friend. Life goes on. It's been over four years now.

Chicago Creation 2011 Star Trek convention

By FCAPT James Olson

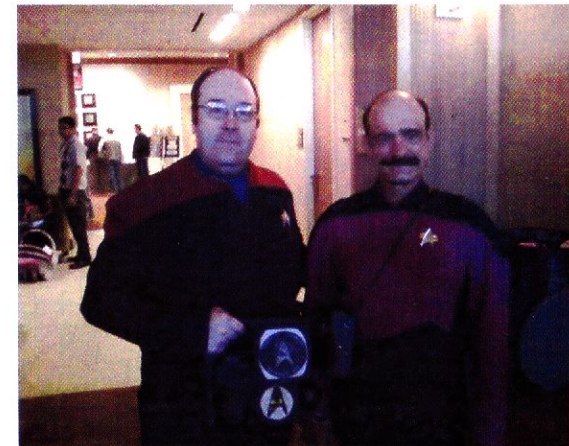

Things were a slight blur as the Fleet Captain met the Ambassador...LLAP stands for "Live Long and Prosper," as Leonard Nimoy marked his last convention appearance, at the Chicago Creation 2011 convention. Note--Fleet Captain Olson's very first convention in May of 1991 was seeing William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy in a semi-staged speaking piece and convention, at University of Chicago's convention center. It was a true honor to briefly meet Mr. Nimoy & wish him well in his career as an art photographer.

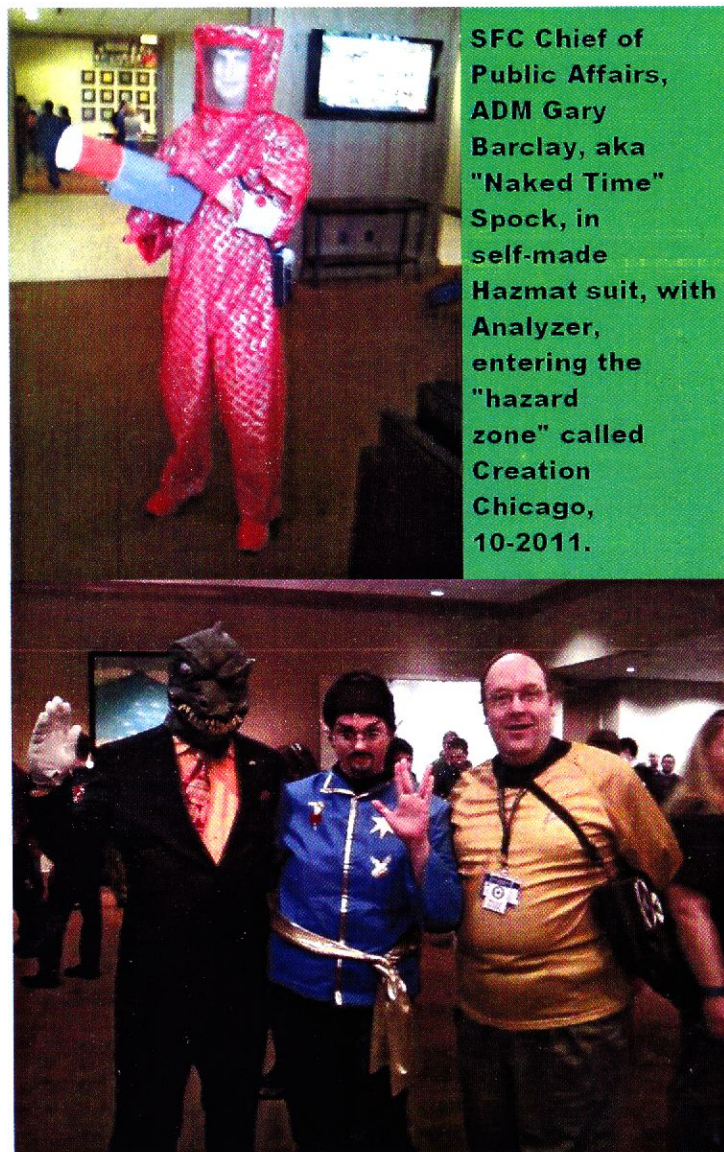

This is the USS Davenport CO Commander Fred "Darius" Monfeli, with new recruit, Cadet Joe, as they are surrounded by Klingons, as a Starfleet Commander looks on from Left. The KAG Klingon delegation hails from the part of the Klingon Empire known as Southern Lower Michigan Creation Chicago Con, 10-2011.

What do you get when you take one Starfleet Cadet (Shelby of Chicago), and add two Orion Slave Girls? Answer: a very nice start to Creation's Chicago con, honoring Leonard Nimoy, 10-2011.

A Starfleet commander talks about Starfleet Command, Quadrant one with Fleet Captain Olson, CO of SFC's Starbase 03, at Creation Chicago con, 10-2011.

Mid-Ohio Comic Con 2011 Columbus, Ohio

By ADM Gary Barclay

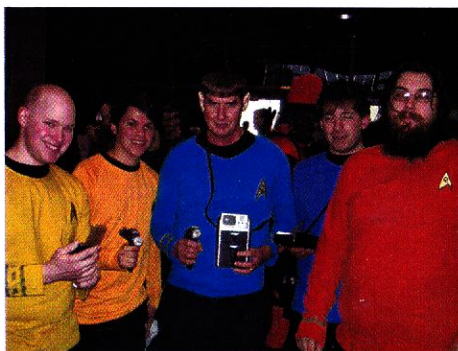

Walter Koenig, Chekov, from the original Star Trek TV and movie series was one of the main Stars at the Mid-Ohio Comic Con 2011 convention. I went as Spock and my nephew Brandon Barclay went as Chekov to honor Walter. We stopped by his booth and I congratulated him on being awarded a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame. He said that his ceremony will be around September 2012. I gave him one of my Vulcan Lirpas AKA Spock Dollars and a Scotty Dollar. My Spock Dollar had information on it for people to encourage the Walk of Fame Committee to vote for Walter to receive a star on the Walk of Fame. ADM Mark Williams was not able to go so I asked Walter to sign a picture of himself as Chekov for him.

My nephew Brandon and I returned later in the convention to have our picture taken with Walter Koenig. Walter came from behind his table and his assistant took our picture. I told Walter that this picture was going to be my new Facebook profile picture. He smiled and laughed. It was just my way of showing my appreciation for him.

The lines for Adam West and Burt Ward looked like a mile long, so Brandon and I decided to get our picture in a replica of the Batmobile instead. The picture came out great with Brandon as Chekov and me as Spock rolling in the Batmobile with our phasers at the ready.

Several groups of people were dressed in Star Trek uniforms. I gathered several of them to get a picture with them. A crowd gathered around and started taking pictures. One of the Comic Con people took a picture of us too. The Starfleet International Star Trek club had two tables manned by the USS Asggaard. I chatted with them and I gave them all a Scotty Dollar that had pictures of me as Scotty and it also has my Star Trek club "Starfleet Command" information and my Facebook information on it.

The Ohio Star Wars group was scattered at several locations in the convention. The first group put me as Spock in hand cuffs. A second group had a table promoting their club. My friend Geoff Krickham was there in his X-Wing fighter suit. The third group had a cut out scene that was part of the Death Star One of my pictures there was of me as Spock escaping the Death Star. The last group had a giant Wookiee. The Wookiee was acting like he was attacking and coking me as Spock.

The convention was fun due to the wide variety of characters portrayed by so many people. Each person was very good natured about me asking them pose with me in a picture. Most of them were even excited that I had asked them to be in a picture with me. They were all given a Scotty Dollar for a souvenir.

The dealer tables had a wide verity of items to choose from. My nephew Brandon wound up buying an Ash hat from Pokemon and a wooden sword. There were many artists there displaying their awesome art works. Brandon wanted to decorate his place with them if he had the money to do so. The Ohio Comic Con turned out to be something that should interest most people on some level. I am happy that I had taken the time to go to it.

Get to know your Starbase 03 Commander

Fleet Captain James M. Olson

1. Why did you join Starfleet Command?

I joined Starfleet Command for fun...by seeing how a Trekker is having Fun, it can be done right.

I attended Starbase Indy through most of the early 2000s. The welcome I received as a representative from another Trek Fan Group at the time, led to fast friendships with several SFC Quadrant One Admiralty, including CinC FADM Mark Bischoff, FADM Andy Sams, ADM Tony Scott (one of the best singers in the Quadrant), and in particular, Admirals (to be) Gary "I am Spock" Barclay, Mark "I am Kirk" Williams, Roy Jackson, and the late ADM Dana Dugan.

Dana Dugan took the group that became the USS Lobo NCC-511, and I, under her wing. The Admiral became our biggest cheerleader, schooling us on involvement, group interests, community service and, guess what?-Fun...

In 2009 this inspiration at SBI resulted in the Starship Lobo's entire active roster going to SBI. As the then-CO, I had the further honor at the same event, of accepting the Best Small Ship, 3rd Place, on the chapter's behalf, capping off our first full year of operation.

2. What do you like most about Fandom?

I like Trek fandom, even more than genre SF&F fans, in our consistency, dedication, and evergreen appeal; even when Star Wars, Harry Potter or even Twilight fans may keep the media amused as the fan boy "flavor of the moment," Trekkers are different. They and Trekkies in general, know they're a breed apart--like the difference between DC (Genre fans) and AC (Trek fans)--we light up in ways far different than others...

In particular, Starfleet Command Quadrant One represents what is the best potential in organized fans, focusing on the local chapter: the Station, Starship, or Starbase. Even at InConJunction's Semi-annual Summit and the Annual Summit at Starbase Indy, national SFC events feel like one big family, and much good is done for food pantries, charities, & Toys for Tots.

3. What do you consider your best quality that you bring to Starfleet Command?

I'd like to think I bring a sense of adventure to Trek Fandom and SFC...Like ADM Dugan I want to continue encouraging fun, thinking outside the box for chapter events & activities, & acting as a resource for both the "business" and "Fictional" sides of a given chapter. Even the mightiest Federation Starship operates only at the pleasure of fans who get something from what they're doing--fun, keeping the "ooh and aah" in Star Trek.

4. What is your favorite Star Trek series and why?

Star Trek: the Original Series. This show broke the mold on what has become the Expanded universe. The Trek milieu runs through many flavors: the films, TNG-era series, and the Reboot universe. But TOS was pure adventure. The Enterprise crew's voyages were set in the future, with people who "got it", who got along, had hope, and were together greater for the sums of their parts.

The one Trek show I make essential viewing is "The Immunity Syndrome". Not the best show, but the most "right" show: The Trio friendship, the (kind of goofy) giant alien monster, the techno babble, the adventure--and the crew saving the day. No other show (maybe ST:XI) got it so right.

USS Endeavour in the 2011 4th of July Parade

By: ADM Gary Barclay

Last year the USS Endeavour entered the 4th of July Parade in Chesterfield with the theme of "Alice in Wonderland." When it was over, everyone had such a great time; they started shouting, "What are doing next year?" The consensus was we should attempt the Wizard of Oz because we have so many children who could be Munchkins.

Our characters were chosen based on how well people thought we could pull it off. Everyone was on board except me since I wanted to do something Sci-Fi related. However, I gave in, much to my delight later when I had fun during the parade.

It was a typically hot day when the parade was getting ready to start. ADM Mark Williams helped FADM Roy Jackson into his home made Tin Man costume. Mark proceeded to put on his lion suit complete with a full head. A couple of people helped me with the Scarecrow costume that my wife had made. The raffia, straw, was too long on my boots so one person from our group had to trim it with a knife. Tere Rowland helped with putting on my makeup.

Athena had the most comfortable costume since she portrayed Dorothy. The rest of the USS Endeavour completed the cast with the wicked witch, Auntie Em, soldiers and, of course, Munchkins. CAPT Misty Jackson tied in our float with the Fourth of July by portraying the Statue of Liberty.

The parade started and our group of the Cowardly Lion, Tin Man, Dorothy and the Scarecrow was followed by the Over the Rainbow parade float. Main Street in Chesterfield, Indiana is also Indiana Highway 32 which was blocked off for the parade. Thousands of people lined each side.

We had the perfect theme since young and old alike enjoy The Wizard of Oz. The crowd was calling out each of their favorite characters. A group came out to give the Cowardly Lion a hug. A photographer from the Anderson Herald Bulletin stepped in to take a picture which was published in the newspaper. They picked the right person to be the Scarecrow. I was dancing around and high-fiving the children. I would shake the hands of the elderly and say "Thank you for watching our show." Their faces would light up as if returning to their childhood. We were told to report to the grandstand after the parade. They told us that we had won 1st place in the Children's Division. I picked up our the next week. It has a USA flag in the background with the head of an eagle and an eagle in flight.

USS Mighty Mississippi NCC 201151

The USS Mighty Mississippi, a new Starfleet Command ship in Davenport, Iowa, has come out of space dock at warp speed. They have been awarded a certificate of appreciation from Starbase 03, for outstanding service for the 3rd quarter of 2011 by Fleet Captain Olson. LTjg Rose Compton is commanding the USS Mighty Mississippi with ENS Ed Ciccarone as the First Officer.

July 2011: Rose joined in a meeting as a guest, with FCAPT James Olson SB 03/Lobo Project, USS Lobo Captain Mike House, his first officer, Bill Van Brunt, and USS Nyota Uhura Captain, Mike Francis. As soon as club business was cleared, a very lively discussion ensued with the debate centering on why some movies do not make good TV series.

August 2011: Rose was honored to be invited to the first official meeting of the USS Winfield Scott, captained by Faith Raley, as they set in motion their chapter. Along with the crew of the USS Winfield Scott, also attending were FC James Olson, SB 03, and USS Lobo FO Bill Van Brunt. Several items were discussed in regards to setting up new chapters and what is required.

September 2011: The Mighty Mississippi also attended the local Celtic Highland Festival and Games. Along with the food, games and bagpipes, we discovered some unusual merchandise.

LTjg Rose Compton and ENS Ed Ciccarone show off their new club shirts.
